

Call for Papers for Journal of Dialogue Studies

Autumn 2014, Volume 2, Number 2

Dialogue Ethics

The Journal of Dialogue Studies is a multidisciplinary, peer-reviewed academic journal published twice a year. It seeks to bring together a body of original scholarship on the theory and practice of dialogue for appraisal and discussion, and to help to establish Dialogue Studies as a distinct academic field. It publishes conceptual, research and/or case-based works on dialogue theory and practice, and papers that discuss wider social, cultural or political issues as these relate to the evaluation of dialogue.

For the third issue, to be published in November 2014, the editors invite:

- Papers exploring 'dialogue ethics'
- Papers on the theme of 'critiquing dialogue theories' (see call for papers for vol 2 no 1)
- Other papers within the general remit of the Journal

Papers focusing on dialogue and ethics may address the following issues, among others:

- Dialogic ethics as conceived by dialogue theorists such as Buber, Gadamer, Freire
- Ethics espoused and/or enacted by leaders of participants in dialogue
- Dialogue as a process of ethics formation/refinement
- Underlying and perhaps unstated values in dialogue
- Ethical pitfalls in the practice of dialogue

Academic Editor:
Prof Paul Weller, Derby
University

For editorial team and board please see website

Key dates

- Paper submission
deadline:
11th July 2014
- Announcement of running order:
September 2014
- Publication of issue:
November 2014

For more information:

http://www.dialoguesociety.org/publications/academia.h tml

journal@dialoguesociety.org

INSTITUTE for DIALOGUE
STUDIES